Dr. Subha Parida

Lecturer, University of South Australia

Dr. Subha Parida's research explores how geographical and socio-cultural contexts shape sustainable practices, policy innovation, and community resilience across sectors like mining, housing, and small businesses. Using a systems-thinking, place-based approach, she integrates qualitative and quantitative methods to understand complex policy and environmental dynamics. She also plays key leadership roles in sustainability-focused academic and professional groups, with current work focusing on return-to-work policies and the social aspects of ESG.
